THIS WEEK

London, Sept. 8. Britain was preparing to rush reinforcements to troubled Cyprus as the three-Power conference on the island's future ended in deadlock last night.

The British Government, fearing fresh terrorism by the Cypriot Greeks demanding 'Enosis'' (union with Greece), made known that fresh naval forces would steam to Cyprus later this week.

These vessels—a naval supply ship and a squadron of minesweepers-follow in the wake of a 630-strong commando force now on its way from Malta.

Israel-Egypt Ceasefire

United Nations, Sept. 7. The Security Council will meet on Thursday at the request of the Western Big Three in an attempt to give a permanent character to the shaky ceasefire between Egypt and Israel.

The United States, Britain and France will offer a proposal to the 11-nation Council calling upon the embittered neighbours to end the retaliatory raids on each other and to co-operate with the Nations in working out a United permanent peace along the Egyptian-Israeli border.

Dr Ting-fu Tslang of China, the Council President, will cal the meeting to order. Practice requires that the representatives of Egypt and Israel be invited to sit at the Council

Tomorrow's meeting quickly arranged in consultations among the three Western powers. DON'T HAVE ILLUSIONS' Adenauer's Warning On Moscow Talks

Bonn, Sept. 7. Konrad Adenauer, Chancellor, leaves here for Moscow in a personal attempt to loosen the 10-year-old East-West deadlock over Germany before the "Big Four" foreign ministers meet in Geneva next month.

The prize is the reunification of Germany. The West German Government and public opinion, hardened by conference after fruitless conference, are pitching expectations low, but there is general agreement that the attempt must be made, however slight the chances.

The Soviet Government made It clear at the Geneva "summit" conference that it is not ready talk seriously about free dections in the four zones of Germany without prior creation of a European security system embracing both Germanies, and revocation of the Atlantic and Warsaw pacts.

Dr Adenauer will not enter into any East-West deal of which the Communist East German republic is a partner nor will he give up the Atlantic Pact, which he sees as the pillar of his country's security.

Less Weighty

All he can hope for in Russian leaders' view at first hand and try and find out reducing their terms for unity:

Other less weighty points to be discussed in Moscow are the fate of the German prisoners still in the Soviet Union (believed to number somewhere belween 10,000 and 100,000) and the magazine Newsweek that the establishment of diplomatic, such a government could tackle cultural and economic relations between Bonn and Moscow.

"We want Japan to rearm. It behaves us to be patient about this because' we are responsible for one of the main obstacles: the prohibition against a military establishment written into the Japanese constitution.

Lindley observed that the US was prepared to withdraw its troops from Japan when or as the Japanese build their ground forces to the required minimum level. He said: "My own view is that we should pull our troops out without waiting for the Japanese to replace them."

On oconomic issues, Lindley said the first essential for Japan was the opportunity to care its iving. Southeast Asia provided Japan with only a limited market, he stated.

Contribution In Volume Was Small But Her Name Lingers On

By Phyllis Bentley

It is a hundred years since Charlotte Bronte died in Haworth Parsonage. Charlotte's life was brief - her age was thirty-nine - and the volume of her work was not large; she wrote only four novels and a handful of unimportant verses. But her writings and her personality seem full of life today.

The Parsonage at Haworth, now a museum, received more than forty thousand visitors last year.

Names Recall The Welsh Settlers Argentina

Buenos Aires, Sept. 7.

Numerous families named Lewis, Jones and Roberts in Argentina today recall the feats of a gallant band of Welsh settlers who landed on a lonely stretch of beach near what is now the town of Puerto Madryn, in the Territory of Chubut, on the bleak south Atlantic coast.

They landed, 153-men, women and children, from the ship Mimosa commanded by Captain Love Jones Parry, on July 28, 1865, full of hope.

The landing, however, was not a happy one. In the Britain they had left, it was high summer. Here, in Argentina, it was mid-winter. The settlers found, instead of the green valleys which they left back home in Wales, a flat, inhospitable semi-desert. The ground was covered with snow and a Colotty Crow was covered with snow and a 60-mile an hour gale was blowing as they put ashore, and were met by Lewis Jones and Edwyn Cynric Roberts, who had Puerto Madryn and others went gone shead months before prepare accommodation for the By 1873, the Welsh colony numparty on the land ceded to the bered 200. America Too Generous Says Benson

US Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson said yesterday he fears the United States has been so generous to foreign agricultural competitors that "we've almost lost the once famous Yankee trading spirit."

He urged the American agricultural attache meeting here to help generate "understanding of and confidence in" agricultural policies of the US.

Mr Benson, in a speech prepared for the meeting, said critics who have accused America of failing to trim its farm sur-pluses, of being highly protectionist and of not supporting programmes of sound and mutually profitable international trade are "misinformed." The fact that they 'continue
